bout Birds ONE day she took her courage, and the maid s too, for that matter, in both hands, and called upon the American consul. She saw the vice-consul. There was a west wind, and it was warm at Nagasaki. He was dozing. When he woke, Madame Butterfly was bowing before him. At a little distance was the maid with the blond baby strapped to her back. He was unable to account for them immediately. Goon night, said Cho-Cho-San, smiling amiably. The consul glanced apprehensively about. Night! Not night, is it? They both discovered the error at the same instant. Ah! no, no, no! Tha s mw-take. Me--I m liddle raddle . Aexcuse us. Tha s not nize, mak raw-take. We got call you good morning, I egspieg, or how do? What you thing? Whichever you like, he answered, without a smile. Then...
