Congressional Sales Office, 2002. OCLC Number: (OCoLC)51198914 Subject: Administrative agencies -- United States -- Rules and practice. Excerpt: . . . 11 The Card memo and its implementation raise a number of con-cerns - some legal, others related more generally to whether the ad-ministration displayed a sufficiently healthy respect for the regu-latory process. Perhaps the most troubling aspect of the Card memo was its instruction regarding its third category - final rules that had been published but had not yet taken effect - a category applicable to two rules discussed later in this report: The roadless area conservation rule and the arsenic rule. B. Legal Concerns By instructing agencies and departments to change the effective date of substantive rules, the Card memo erroneously suggested that agencies have greater authority to unilaterally alter final rules which have not yet become effective than they have over those al-ready being implemented. There is no basis for such a distinction. Under the APA, a rule is final once it is promulgated. There is no question that once a rule has been signed by the agency head 26 and published in the Federal Register, it has been promulgated. Moreover, there is no doubt that a rules effective date is an inte-gral and substantial component of a final rule, and it is established that a change or suspension in the effective date (either before or after it has gone into effect) may only be accomplished through a further notice and public comment period (unless an exception is 27 appropriate). As noted, such decisions must be...
