Mandamus will not lie to control the discretion of the board in this respect, nor in any case to control the discretion of a functionary. Broadus v. Supervisors, 99 Va. 371, 38 S. E. 1T7. Sec. 927. When jail of county to be jail for town. Every town, having no jail of its own, shall have the use of the jail of the county in which such town is located, to aid the constituted authorities of any such town in maintaining peace and good order, and generally for the enforcement of its ordinances and by-laws, unless for good cause the judge of the circuit court of such county shall prohibit such use. (1871-2, p. 18; 1902-3-4, p. 636.) Under this section, qualified by 928-30, a town which uses a jail of its own is liable for injuries to health of prisoner caused by its filthy condition, since under this section, and a special provision of its charter, it might have used a county jail, subject to inspection and control.
